Welcome to the Dinner Table of the South

BIRMINGHAM HAS ALWAYS BEEN SOMETHING OF A PLACE APART.

Compared with many of its southeastern counterparts, this is a young city, springing from gutsy beginnings in the iron and steel industry and evolving into a major medical center in the U.S.

Though Birmingham is Alabama's largest city, it has retained inviting Southern traditions and a sense of counting family and friends important, not population statistics.

Birmingham is widely known as the "Dinner Table of the South." Defining highlights these days are connected to a flourishing food scene. From James Beard culinary award winners to the world's best barbecue, the city's food culture has attracted national attention among those in the know. Birmingham breweries are producing craft beers that connoisseurs are clamoring for. Other local watering holes are full of fun and character, some even with their own James Beard nominations.

Live theater and musical performances fill the entertainment schedule, especially in Birmingham's Theater District. The ▶ historic Alabama and Lyric Theatres are meticulously restored for performances, and, across the street, the Sidewalk Cinema is in full swing with arthouse and independent films.

International visitation is on the increase in Birmingham. Shopping in the state's retail giant is a big draw, along with attractions such as Barber Vintage Motorsports Museum. There, tourists from around the globe find the world's largest collection of antique and contemporary motorcycles and Lotus cars. It's a banquet for bike enthusiasts and a feast for the eyes for everyone.

An American revolution took place in the streets of Birmingham in the 1960s. The city was Ground Zero for the Civil Rights Movement, with police dogs and water hoses on one side and non-violence and the certainty of a better tomorrow on the other. Today, the Civil Rights District is a national monument, with the Birmingham Civil Rights Institute serving as the focal point.

Golfers come from around the country to enjoy the moderate weather and to play the city's courses along the famed Robert Trent Jones Golf Trail. And all skill levels love the challenge and entertainment they find at Topgolf Birmingham.

Birmingham visitors find a city that embraces the freedom of self-expression and the vigor of progress. Enjoy your time here and come back to see us again soon. ♦

Timothy Hontzas, head chef and owner of Johnny's Restaurant in Homewood, is a six-time semifinalist for Best Chef in the South by the James Beard Foundation. A chef with longtime ties to the Birmingham area, Hontzas opened Johnny's – a “Greek meat-and-three” – in 2012 to pay homage to his family's heritage.

THE HEAVIEST CORNER ON EARTH

“The Heaviest Corner on Earth” isn’t really the heaviest corner on earth, of course. But it is a striking tribute to Birmingham’s miraculous growth in the early 1900s and an important legacy from the city’s formative years.

The Heaviest Corner on Earth refers to a grouping of four early skyscrapers anchoring the downtown intersection on 20th Street and First Avenue North. The structures heralded Birmingham’s coming of age at the turn of the century when the smokestacks of heavy industry belched the soot and grime of prosperity.

From 1903 to 1913 seven skyscrapers sprang up in the flourishing downtown district. The four at the main intersection created an unusual massing, setting the scale for their successors. The towering giants were monstrous in comparison to the delicate design of the 19th century buildings along First Avenue.

The residents of Birmingham were sure the dominance of these soaring structures made the intersection “the heaviest corner on earth,” and they proudly proclaimed it so.

When passersby through this busy intersection gaze upward, the massive group of buildings still has a powerful effect. Their contemporary counterparts just a few blocks away are, of course, much bigger, and more commanding than these turn-of-the-century skyscrapers. But standing at that intersection, surrounded by their compelling dignity, you can understand exactly why it once felt like the heaviest corner on earth.

12. Arlington Antebellum Home and Gardens

The city's only antebellum home, the mansion is fully restored and contains a fine collection of antiques and decorative arts including 19th century furniture, textiles, silver and paintings. During the Civil War, Arlington Antebellum home was spared from destruction when Union troops used the home as headquarters. Open Tues – Sat, 10 am – 4 pm; Closed Sun (tickets sold until 3 pm) Admission. 331 Cotton Ave SW. 205-780-5656.

Prix of Alabama. Museum Hours: April 1 – September 30, Mon– Sat: 10am – 6pm, Sunday: Noon – 6pm; October 1 – March 31, Mon – Sat: 10am – 5pm, Sun: Noon – 5pm. Admission. 6030 Barber Motorsports Pkwy. 205-699-7275. barbermuseum.org

14. Bethel Baptist Church

Included in the national monument district is Birmingham's Bethel Baptist Church, credited with shaping the Civil Rights Movement here. Civil rights legend, the Reverend Fred L. Shuttlesworth, was pastor of Bethel Baptist Church from 1953 through 1961. The church often served as a gathering place for discussions of civil rights among Blacks, gatherings that angered white supremacists. In 1958, Bethel Baptist was bombed, though the church was empty at the time. The bombing cemented Shuttlesworth's fiery determination to bring Birmingham to the center of the Civil Rights Movement. Open by appointment. Admission. 3200 28th Avenue North, 205.322.5360. thehistoricbethel.org

15. Birmingham Botanical Gardens

The glory of nature in the heart of the city—that's the promise of the 67-acre Birmingham Botanical Gardens. The gardens are Alabama's largest living museum with more than 10,000 different plants in 25 themed areas. The gardens also have more than 30 works of original outdoor sculpture and miles of walking paths. Birmingham Botanical Gardens also has the largest public horticulture library in the U.S., conservatories, a wildflower garden, two rose gardens and Japanese Gardens with a traditionally crafted tea house. Open sunrise to sunset daily.

2612 Lane Park Rd. 205-414-3900.

17. Birmingham Civil Rights Institute

Richly detailed exhibits in the Civil Rights Institute reveal slices of Black and white life in Alabama from the late 1800s to the present. A series of galleries tells the stories of daily life for African-Americans in the state and the nation and how dramatically different it was from the lives white people of that era took for granted. The powerful Movement Gallery presents the Civil Rights Movement from 1955 to 1963. Here a picture emerges of the bad old days of "Bombingham," a reference to the relentless violence that rocked the city in the late 1950s and early '60s. In the final exhibits, the Processional Gallery uses life-size figures representing all ages and races to portray the "walk to freedom." Open Tues–Sat, 10 am–5 pm; Admission. (Last admission one hour prior to gallery closing.)

22. Cathedral of St. Paul Church

Built as a church for Birmingham's Catholic population, it became the cathedral of the Catholic Diocese of Birmingham in 1969. The Cathedral of Saint Paul – informally known as Saint Paul's Cathedral – was designed by Chicago architect Adolphus Druiding; the Victorian Gothic-style brick building was completed as a parish church in 1893. 2120 3rd Ave N., 205-251-1279; stpaulsbham.org

23. City Walk BHAM

The newest addition to the exciting momentum in Birmingham, City Walk BHAM is transforming the area within the I-59/20 corridor into an environment that connects the city like never before. City Walk BHAM has something for everyone – from young to old and artists to athletes. The space, which spans 10 city blocks from 15th Street North to 25th Street North and is almost a mile in length, features playgrounds and pickleball courts, a skate park and a dog park, space for fitness classes, food trucks, and much more. Not to mention, the LED ribbon lighting certainly makes a Birmingham vibe. City Walk BHAM is located along 9th avenue north between 15th street and 25th street. It stretches underneath the I 59/20 interstate bridges through the central business district of Birmingham near the BJCC.

Open daily 7 am – 11 pm; 205-458-8216. info@citywalkbham.com; citywalkbham.com

24. Eddie Kendrick Memorial Park

Honoring Birmingham native and Temptations lead singer, Eddie Kendrick, who traveled the world but never forgot his Alabama roots. Sculpted by Ronald Scott McDowell, the Kendrick statue captures for eternity the magic moves of his Motown music. Inlaid in a granite backdrop behind Kendrick, the four other Temptations energize the work with their fine-tuned choreography. Born in Birmingham in 1937, Kendrick and the Temptations hit the top of the music charts in 1964 with "The Way You Do the Things You Do," the first of 37 career Top Ten hits. Eddie Kendrick Memorial Park is located at the corner of 4th Avenue North and 18th Street in Birmingham's famed Civil Rights District, just a block from the Alabama. 1727 4th Ave N, Birmingham, AL 35203

25. Eternal Word Television Network – EWTN

One of the best-known religious sites in Birmingham is EWTN, the Eternal Word Television Network, founded by Mother Mary Angelica, broadcasting daily from the grounds of Our Lady of the Angels Monastery. Mother Angelica hosted "Mother Angelica Live!" on EWTN until she suffered a debilitating stroke in 2001. Today daily Mass, music, news, and devotionals are broadcast round the clock to more than 230 million television households in more than 140 countries and territories. Tours by appointment only. 5817 Old Leeds Rd, Irondale, 205-271-2900. ewtn.com

Calling All Cemetery Buffs

New Orleans is not the only city noted for its interesting cemeteries. (And by the way, if you think people aren't interested in touring cemeteries, well, you're dead wrong. Just ask the folks at the New Orleans Tourist Bureau or the Hollywood Cemetery.)

Birmingham's first official burial ground, Oak Hill Cemetery, is the final resting place of most of the city's founding fathers and their families. A piece of Birmingham's early history is told here by very ornate as well as simple grave markers scattered across a hill just north of the Birmingham-Jefferson Convention Complex. Most of the burials were prior to 1930.

Elmwood Cemetery is another site of interest to cemetery buffs. Unusual markers include a giant Oriental mushroom alongside a bridge spanning the earthly life with the eternal. Graves of famous Alabamians include that of Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant, former coach of the University of Alabama's famous Crimson Tide. The cemetery got so many requests for directions to Bryant's grave that they finally painted crimson stripes to follow from the entrance to his burial site.

Also buried at Elmwood is Eddie Kendrick, founding member of the Temptations. The legendary Sun Ra, who died in 1993, was internationally famous for his wildly experimental jazz and claim that he was born in outer space. Only in death did Herman Sonny Blount, the name inscribed on his simple headstone, come home to earth to stay.

26. Heart of Dixie Railroad Museum

Alabama's official railroad museum, the Heart of Dixie Railroad Museum has operating standard gauge and narrow gauge trains and two restored depots housing a good collection of railroad artifacts. Also on the grounds is a collection of railway cars, locomotives, and cabooses. Train rides available—call for dates and times. Museum open Tues – Sat, 9 am – 4 pm. Donations welcome. 1919 9th St, Calera. 205-668-3435. hodrrm.org

27. Kelly Ingram Park

Called a “Place of Revolution and Reconciliation,” Kelly Ingram Park in Birmingham’s Civil Rights District is adjacent to the Birmingham Civil Rights Institute and historic 16th Street Baptist Church. The park served as a staging area for demonstrations in the early 1960s, including the ones in which police dogs and fire hoses were turned on marchers. Images of those attacks haunted Birmingham in the decades that followed, but they were the same images that were instrumental in overturning legal segregation. An audio tour, available via your cell phone, takes you on a journey through the most dramatic days of the Civil Rights Movement in Birmingham. Bounded by 16th and 17th Streets and 5th and 6th Avenues North. nps.gov/nr/travel/civilrights/all10.htm

28. “Letter From Birmingham Jail” Historic Marker

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. wrote his famous “Letter from Birmingham Jail” in April 1963 while he was incarcerated for violating an injunction that prohibited public civil rights demonstrations in Birmingham. He wrote it in response to a handful of Alabama’s leading white religious leaders who had issued a public statement questioning the motives and methods of the King-led demonstrations in the city. 425 6th Ave S.

29. Lyric Theater

Reopened in 2016 after a multi-million dollar renovation, the beautiful Lyric Theatre opened as a vaudeville venue with 1914. Stars such as the Marx Brothers, Mae West and Milton Berle played the Lyric. Today it hosts a range of performances of all

36. Sixteenth Street Baptist Church National Historic Landmark

The Sixteenth Street Baptist Church is Birmingham's most famous Civil Rights landmark. On a September Sunday morning in 1963, four African-American schoolgirls were in the basement of the church just prior to the worship service. A bomb set by Ku Klux Klansmen ripped through that side of the church, killing 11-year-old Denise McNair, Carole Robertson, Cynthia Wesley and Addie Mae Collins, all 14 years old. The bombing was a turning point in the status of race relations locally and nationally. Now a National Historic Landmark, the church is a reminder of man's inhumanity and his capacity for love and forgiveness. The sanctuary of the church contains a massive stained glass window of Christ, given in memoriam from the people of Wales following the bombing. Admission charged. Reserve tours by appointment online. Open Tues-Sat 10am, last tour begins at 3pm. 1530 6th Ave N. 205-251-9402 16thstreetbaptist.org.

The parsonage next door, built in 1914, houses the Wallace A. Rayfield Museum. This exhibition honors the renowned Black architect who, designed the 16th Street Baptist Church, and other builders of the Black community who were at the forefront of reimagining. Open to the public 10am- 4pm. 1530 6th Ave N. 205-251-9402 16thstreetbaptist.org

37. Sloss Furnaces National Historic Landmark

Sloss is a 32-acre blast furnace plant where iron was made for nearly 100 years. Now a museum of history and industry, the site preserves a collection of machinery, buildings and industrial structures. These artifacts typify the first 100 years of Birmingham's history and the technology that drove America's rise to world industrial dominance. Sloss is the only 20th century blast furnace in the country being preserved and interpreted as a museum. Visit website for more information. 20 32nd St N. 205-254-2025. slossfurnaces.com

40. Vulcan Park and Museum

Vulcan is the largest cast iron statue in the world and Birmingham's city symbol. Standing high atop Red Mountain, the 56-foot-high statue has an observation balcony on its pedestal for a panoramic view of the city. Vulcan is patterned after the mythical Roman god of the forge, a nod to the city's powerful position in the iron and steel industry in the first part of the 20th century. The statue was created as Birmingham's exhibit in the 1904 World's Fair in St. Louis and won the exposition's grand prize. The museum at Vulcan has interactive exhibits and displays that portray the region's history and progress. Museum open Mon – Sun, 10 am – 6 pm; Observation balcony open Mon – Sun, 10 am – 10 pm. Admission. 1701 Valley View Dr., 205-933-1409. visitvulcan.com ♦

Vulcan's Love Interest

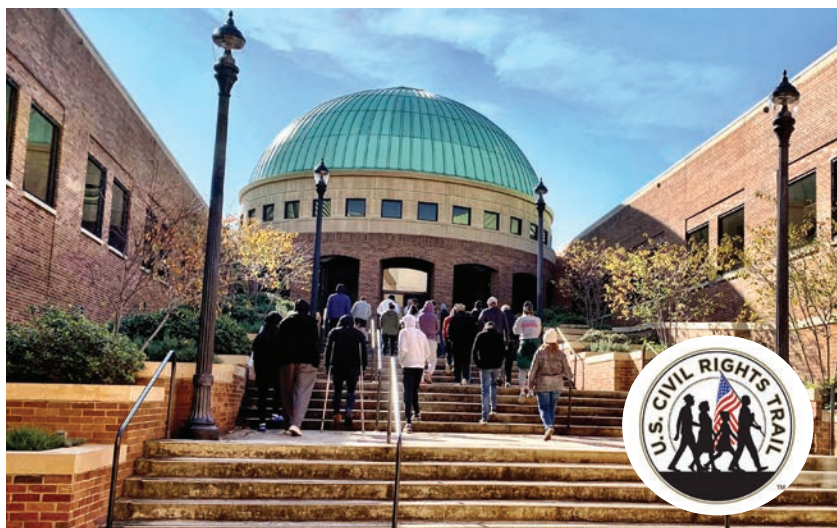

Everybody knows Vulcan.

He's modeled after the mythical god of the fire and forge. He's Birmingham's most famous landmark. He's the largest cast iron statue in the world. He watches over the city from his post on Red Mountain. Hardly a visitor comes to Birmingham without stopping in to see Vulcan. Or at least to cast an interested gaze toward his prominent position on the mountain.

Vulcan's sometimes checkered history is a fascinating story in itself, but Birmingham's downtown also is home to other statues, less famous perhaps than Vulcan but interesting nonetheless.

Sometimes rumored to be Vulcan's sweetheart, Miss Electra crowns the Alabama Power Company building on North 18th Street. The shapely 16 ½ foot, cast bronze statue, coated with gold leaf, weighs 4,000 pounds, a mere statuette compared to Vulcan's 56-foot, 120,000-pound frame. Legend goes that when the downtown streets need paving, it is because the great Iron Man has lumbered down from the mountain, ripping up city streets in his nocturnal quest to see his beloved Miss Electra.

Edward Field Sanford Jr., a New York sculptor, designed Miss Electra, which was completed in 1925. She holds aloft sheaves of lightning bolts, symbolizing the progress of Alabama electrified. Miss Electra is one of only a handful of statues its size applied to American architectural design.

THE BIRMINGHAM CIVIL RIGHTS DISTRICT

Birmingham's Civil Rights District: A Must-See for Visitors

IN ONE OF HIS FINAL ACTS AS PRESIDENT, Barack Obama signed a proclamation naming the Birmingham Civil Rights District a national monument. Birmingham was Ground Zero for the civil rights campaign in 1963, an era marked by attacks and jail cells on one side and non-violence and the resolute certainty of a better tomorrow on the other.

The national monument encompasses historic sites downtown that were significant to the revolution that took place in the streets of Birmingham in the 1960s. One of those sites is the city's most famous civil rights landmark, the 16th Street Baptist Church. In the basement of the church on a September Sunday morning in 1963, a dynamite bomb set by Ku Klux Klansmen ripped through the side of the church, killing four African-American schoolgirls. Killed in the bombing were 11-year-old Denise McNair, Carole Robertson, Cynthia Wesley and Addie Mae Collins, all 14 years old.

The bombing horrified the nation and the world and was a turning point in race relations in the country.

Included in the national monument district is Birmingham's Bethel Baptist Church, credited with shaping the Civil Rights Movement here. Civil rights legend, the Reverend Fred L. Shuttlesworth, was pastor of Bethel Baptist Church from 1953 through 1961. The church often served as a gathering place for discussions of civil rights among Blacks, gatherings that angered white supremacists. In 1958, Bethel Baptist was bombed, though the church was empty at the time. The bombing cemented Shuttlesworth's fiery determination to bring Birmingham to the center of the Civil Rights Movement.

The national monument includes historic Kelly Ingram Park. The park served as a congregating area for demonstrations in the early 1960s, including the ones in which police dogs and fire hoses were turned on marchers by Birmingham police. Images of those attacks haunted Birmingham in the decades that followed, but they were the same images that were instrumental in overturning legal segregation.

The Birmingham Civil Rights Institute, the Colored Masonic Temple, St. Paul Lutheran Church and portions of the 4th Avenue Business District, which arose from Blacks being shunned by white merchants, are included in the national monument. Also part of the designation is the A.G. Gaston Motel, where Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. met and collaborated with allies during the Birmingham campaign.

With its unrivaled place in American civil rights history, Birmingham has been called “the city that changed the world.” Now restoration is underway on the A.G. Gaston Motel in the city’s historic Civil Rights District. The motel housed activists such as Martin Luther King Jr. during his time here planning the Birmingham campaign in 1963. Crews currently are at work preserving the building’s character of that era. At Sloss Furnaces Historic Landmark, a new historic marker memorializes two lynching victims from the late 1800s. More markers are scheduled to be erected to mark local lynchings that took place during racial violence in the U.S. from 1877 to 1950.

A GUIDE TO BIRMINGHAM SHOPPING

WHERE TO SHOP

KIM GRAHAM SMITH

Downtown Birmingham

Investigating downtown shopping is an adventure in itself. Start out on Morris Avenue where you'll get a whiff of the fresh aroma of roasting peanuts at Alabama Peanut Company and around the corner on 1st Avenue North check out the dapper Bridge + Root men's clothing store. You'll also find good restaurants and bars on Morris and in the 2nd Avenue area. Just off 20th on Third Avenue North is a treasure trove of memories at Reed Books (see Arts and Antiques section). Head further south down 20th into historic Five Points South where the "The Storyteller," a fountain designed by Birmingham-native sculptor Frank Fleming, is located. Also check out The Golden Temple, where herbal supplements are sold alongside Birkenstocks® and gifts from around the world. alabama.travel/road-trips/birmingham-taking-it-to-the-streets-downtown

Downtown Homewood

Old-style shopping along main street in the Birmingham suburb of Homewood includes upscale clothing shops, home decorating stores, and nationally acknowledged high-end antique galleries. A stop by Savage's Bakery, a local landmark, is a necessity. Soho Square has restaurants at sidewalk level below residential lofts. Homewood is also home to The Alabama Booksmith, an independent bookstore selling only signed editions. 18th Street (and beyond), Homewood. homewoodchamber.org

English Village, Mountain Brook Village and Crestline Village

In the heart of the suburb of Mountain Brook are three distinct shopping areas. English Village has restaurants, coffee houses and garden shops. Mountain Brook Village has art shops, high-end boutiques and home furnishing stores. (Don't miss a stroll ►

Patton Creek

The shopping area combines a "main street" element with parking and sidewalks in front of a mix of shops and restaurants. In the Birmingham suburb of Hoover between I-459, the Riverchase Galleria, and Alabama Hwy 150. pattoncreek.com

Pepper Place

For a different sort of shopping experience and a clear departure from the mall scene, Pepper Place is your destination. Pepper Place, an old Dr. Pepper syrup plant, houses an eclectic mix of home furnishing shops, art galleries and architectural stores. During the spring and summer months, tourists and residents flock to the Pepper Place Market, an outdoor farmers market with chef demonstrations every Saturday. Alongside the tomatoes, squash and peaches, shoppers find hand-crafted clothing, yard ornaments, honey, organic soaps, goat cheese and scones. Pepper Place is also home to the popular Ovenbird restaurant. pepperplacemarket.com

Riverchase Galleria

Housed beneath the world's longest skylight are more than 150 shops and restaurants, along with a colorful carousel. Look for Clarks, Von Maur, Sephora, and dozens more in this two-story city under glass. riverchasegalleria.com

The Outlet Shops of Grand River

This set of outlet stores is situated in the picturesque landscape of the Cahaba River Valley. A sampling of the distinctive outlet and specialty stores are Brooks Brothers, Banana Republic, Coach, Eddie Bauer, and more. Check out the Grand River Drive-In theater, The Pixel Room and the 18-hole mini-golf course. shopsofgrandriver.com

The Summit

Birmingham's premiere shopping destination, this open air mall has more than 100 stores and lots of restaurants. The Summit has locally-owned shops along with Saks, Lucky Brand, Gus Mayer, Chico's, and Pottery Barn. And that's just six. You'll find good eats at The Summit, too, at places such as P.F. Chang's, Fleming's Steakhouse, and Village Tavern. At I-459 and U.S. 280. thesummitonline.com

Trussville Shopping

The booming suburb of Trussville includes three large shopping areas. Target and Books-A-Million anchor the mall on U.S. 11. A second shopping area occupies both sides of Chalkville Road, just after the first I-59 Trussville exit, with a Wal-Mart and cinema on one side and Kohl's anchoring the other. The third cluster of shops is the Pinnacle Shopping Center, located behind Target and anchored by Belk and Best Buy. shoppinnaacleattutwiler.com ♦

HISTORIC FIVE POINTS SOUTH ENTERTAINMENT DISTRICT

Founded in 1893, Five Points South is a walkable neighborhood with James Beard

Foundation Award-winning restaurants and historically significant architecture. The beautiful Highlands United Methodist Church, the centerpiece of Five Points, has been part of the neighborhood for more than 100 years. The fountain sculpture in front of the church, "The Storyteller," was designed by Birmingham artist Frank Fleming and conveys the deep Southern tradition of storytelling. The fountain is a favorite backdrop for tourists taking photographs in the area. Five Points is a popular shopping and dining destination, influenced by nationally-renowned restaurants such as Highlands Bar and Grill. fivepointsbbam.com

HISTORIC LAKEVIEW ENTERTAINMENT DISTRICT

Developed in the late 19th century, the Lakeview District is named for a lake and other attractions that once defined the former Lakeview Park. Present day Lakeview looks little as it did then, but it has flourished and grown and holds a good quality assortment of restaurants and nightspots. Among the favorite dining rooms in the area are Bettola, Half Shell Oyster House and Hot & Hot Fish Club. In the spring and summer months, locals and tourists flock to Pepper Place Saturday Market for locally grown fruit, produce and plants. The Lakeview District stretches across several blocks and includes other clusters of restaurants and clubs, including the highly-rated Five Bar, Lou's Pub and Package Store, and Slice Pizza & Brew, a hip pizza place.

MOSS ROCK PRESERVE

This 250-acre preserve has boulders for climbers of all skill levels. It is home to four rare plant species, rock outcroppings, streams, waterfalls and wildlife. The wilderness within the preserve continues to improve as hardwoods grow and age and trails become more defined by continued use.

For maximum mileage, take the loop made up of the Blue and White Trails, which is a little more than 3 miles long. Or just spread out in the shady coolness of the preserve and picnic. Please remember to take only pictures and leave only footprints.

GETTING THERE: From I-459 in Birmingham take Exit 10 onto Alabama 150. Turn east toward downtown Hoover. Turn left on Stadium Trace Parkway. Stay straight; this road becomes Sulphur Springs Road. Go about two miles to the intersection with Preserve Parkway. This road leads to Moss Rock Preserve and to parking for the boulder field.

OAK MOUNTAIN STATE PARK

Alabama's largest state park offers plenty of trails for hikers who want a peaceful outing apart from the mountain bikers. New park goers might want to try the Eagle Trail or Treetop Nature Trail for starters, but those are only two of many. The Peavine Trail, four-and-a-half miles round trip, is moderate to difficult, but it's still a popular hike because of the payoff: It leads to Peavine Falls, which cascade down a rock wall and splash into a pool below.

Three suggested hiking loops begin at the North Trailhead. Maggie's Loop is an easy two-and-a-half-mile walk. North Loop is three-and-a-half miles long; it's rated easy to moderate because of some ascents. Shackelford Loop is rated moderate to difficult because of its six-and-a-half-mile length. Maps for these and other Oak Mountain trails are available at the park office.

FOR MORE INFORMATION: 205-620-2524 or alapark.com

RAILROAD PARK

A 21-acre park in downtown Birmingham gives the city a historically rich green space for recreation, concerts and cultural events. Called Railroad Park, the area is designed to highlight Birmingham's development at the crossing of two railroad lines. The park runs along a railroad corridor at First Avenue South from 14th to 18th Streets ► and includes a lake, a natural amphitheater and several playgrounds. Ten acres of open provide a strolling garden landscaped to bloom with various perennials throughout the year. The park is an essential piece of a long-term plan that will give Birmingham the greatest amount of green space per capita of anywhere in the country.

NATHAN STUCKEY

FOR MORE INFORMATION: railroadpark.org.

RED MOUNTAIN PARK

With 1,200 acres, Red Mountain Park is one of the largest urban parks in America. The park has more than 10 miles of trails and a universal-access zip line canopy tour. The Hugh Kaul Beanstalk Forest is a treetop challenge course with 20 ropes course obstacles, including bridges, tightropes and zip lines.

Remy's Dog Park is designed with three designated fenced-in areas, each with ample running space for large, small and special needs dogs. The Kaul Adventure Tower is an 80-foot-tall climbing tower with eight climbing lanes, two rappelling lanes, a 72-foot climbing wall and a mega zip line 1,300 feet long. The entrance to the park is just off Lakeshore Parkway at the end of Frankfurt Drive.

RED ROCK TRAIL SYSTEM

A project of the Freshwater Land Trust, this network of trails is made up of six major corridors spanning Jefferson County. Each corridor consists of different types of trails that connect the county together. To learn more about Red Rock's variety of trails, use their interactive trail guide at freshwaterlandtrust.org.

RUFFNER MOUNTAIN NATURE PRESERVE

Eleven miles of nature trails, ranging from easy to arduous, route visitors through this thousand-acre park. Hawk's View Overlook is a moderate, three-mile, round-trip hike with a challenging incline. Along the way you'll reach Cambrian Overlook and proceed with a switchback climb to a stunning vista of downtown Birmingham.

The new Visitors Center offers lessons in nature and the environment and has exhibits including raptors, turtles and other native Alabama wildlife. The Visitor Center is open Tuesday – Saturday, 9am – 5pm; Sunday, 1pm – 5pm. Hiking trails are open daily, dawn to dusk. Donations welcome. 1214 81st St S.

FOR MORE INFORMATION: 205-833-8264 or ruffnermountain.org.

GETTING THERE: The center is at 1214 81st St. South in Birmingham's East Lake area.

STEELE'S HORSE PENS 40

Horse Pens 40 is a 120-acre nature park atop Chandler Mountain, and one of the Southeast's best boulder fields. There's a warm-up field with relatively easy routes to the top as well as more challenging climbs. Instructions on the rocks tell climbers how to start their ascents. A national bouldering competition held each fall draws hundreds of climbers from around the U.S.

FOR MORE INFORMATION: 256-570-0076 or hp40.com.

GETTING THERE: From I-59 North, take the Asheville exit. Go north on U.S. 231 for about four miles. Watch for signs. For RVs and campers, the easy way is to take I-59 to exit 174. Go north on Steele Station Rd. At U.S. 11, take a left. You'll soon see a sign at St. Clair 42. Take a right and go to the top of Chandler Mountain. After this road turns left, follow it for three miles to the entrance; look for signs.

VULCAN TRAIL

At slightly more than a mile in length, the Vulcan Trail is a gem carved from the rough stone of what was once part of the old L&N Birmingham Mineral Railroad.

Located off Richard Arrington, Jr. Boulevard, at the base of Vulcan Park and Museum, the trail offers a quiet stroll along a shaded path and fantastic views of the city skyline below.

In 2003, a volunteer group of citizens formed "Friends of Vulcan Trail" to work to make the experience of visiting the trail a highlight for all who walk it.

Canoeing and Kayaking

CAHABA RIVER

Alabama's longest river is a great place to canoe or kayak. Just remember along the way that you're sharing space with several rare and protected fish and the imperiled Cahaba Lily which once thrived across the southeast.

Floating down the Cahaba's gentle waters provides a pleasant respite and a close-up look at some of the interesting species. If you're looking to make a bigger splash, head to the river's northernmost portions for some Level I-III whitewater rapids.

The Cahaba River Society hosts canoe trips down the river, including day trips, moonlight trips and overnight canoeing. Among the most popular outings are the Lily Trips, which run when the rare and endangered Cahaba Lily is in bloom, from mid-May to mid-June. Trips are free if you bring your own canoe, and reservations are required.

FOR MORE INFORMATION: Cahaba River Society, 205-322-5326 or cababariversociety.org. For boat rentals: Alabama Small Boats, 205-424-3634.

LOCUST FORK

Just a short drive from Birmingham, Locust Fork is on the Black Warrior River. This is an excellent white water run with some very difficult rapids known as Double Trouble and House Rock. Beginners will do best to avoid these rapids. Beautiful limestone bluffs accent the rapids. The National Park Service places Locust Fork in the top two percent of rivers in the country for its recreational value, among other assets.

GETTING THERE: Take I-59 North to Tallapoosa Street Exit (Tarrant). Take Alabama Hwy. 79 North through Cleveland (about 40 minutes). Follow signs to Blountsville and cross the bridge over the Locust Fork River. Just past the bridge on the right is King's Bend. Turn into King's Bend and follow the gravel road through the gate.

Grits, Cornbread, and Potlikker

If you weren't raised in the South, bless your heart, there are things you should know about grits, cornbread, and the Southern delicacy known as potlikker.

First, let it be known that grits is a singular noun. "This grits is hot." "This grits is good." Grits never "are." If your grits is not good, then add some butter, salt, and pepper. If your grits still is not good, then the cook is not good either, which is rare.

Real Southern cornbread does not, under any circumstances, excuses, or recipe flaws contain sugar. Good Southern cornbread simply is not sweet. Should you happen upon a chunk of the golden goodness that is sweet, feel free to complain loudly to the cook, who is sure to have been raised somewhere other than the South.

Now potlikker is a true Southern delicacy. It is imperative that you sample it during your visit here. Potlikker is the greenish brew that drains from fresh cooked turnip greens. The primo potlikker is found at one of dozens of steam tables around the area, not in white tablecloth dining rooms, where it is best not to bring up the subject at all.

Ask for a cup of potlikker and take that warm wedge of cornbread (no sugar), crumble it up in the cup, and eat it with a spoon. It is equally acceptable to dip your cornbread sticks in potlikker. Do not hesitate to enjoy cornbread and potlikker any way you want to eat it. It is very close to heaven and is not considered a social misstep.

Cornbread (not sweetened) is also delicious when it's crumbled into a cup of buttermilk. Local meat-and-three diners* will be happy to fill your order.

Meat-and-three diners are known for their low prices and generous servings of a meat with three fresh vegetables of your choosing.*

IF YOU TAKE A NOTION to try some local brews, this trail's for you. Travel along with your imaginary host, Jammin' Jim, to some of his favorite taprooms and watering holes. Jim loves nothing more than a cold snort of craft beer. Come follow his trail. And remember to Uber when you drink. It's the smart and safe thing to do.

AVONDALE BREWING CO.

201 41st Street S, Birmingham
avondalebrewing.com

Avondale Brewing is housed in an historic building in the heart of the Avondale entertainment district. Stop by for beers in the taproom and sour room and watch them craft delicious brews. Try samples of the latest and greatest. Here, you can learn the story of the famous beer-swilling elephant, Miss Fancy.

BACK FORTY BEER CO.

3201 1st Ave N, Birmingham backfortybeer.com/birmingham

This innovative brew team offers a variety of American and European craft beer styles, all brewed on-site and served fresh. With as many as 25 different options on tap, the brewery also serves a creative menu of gourmet pub foods.

BIRMINGHAM DISTRICT BREWING CO.

2201 2nd Ave S, Birmingham
birminghamdistrictbrewing.com

With more than 20 years of brewing expertise, the brewers here are dedicated to creating better and bolder beer. While keeping up with beer trends, they also strive to produce unusual brews that keep Jim and other patrons returning time and again.

CAHABA BREWING CO.

4500 5th Ave S, Birmingham
cahababrewing.com

Jump into this spacious taproom named for the Cahaba River that flows nearby. The brewery is open seven days a week for your thirst-quenching pleasure. With more than 26 taps, this is one of Birmingham's favorite gathering spots, serving up staples like Blonde, Oka Uba, Pale Ale, and Lager.

DREAD RIVER DISTILLING CO.

dreadriver.com

This distilling company brews small batches of beer and distilled spirits such as straight whiskey, rum, gin and vodka. Enjoy an onsite restaurant, plenty of event space, and a unique tour and Mixology 101 educational experience.

FERUS ARTISAN ALES

ferusales.com

Birmingham's second location of Ferus Artisan Ales is in the happening Avondale section of town. Roam wild in this unique space with plenty of room for private events and an excellent outdoor area for shows and live concerts. An excellent menu featuring something for the herbivores, carnivores or those just grazing.

GHOST TRAIN BREWING

3501 1st Ave S, Birmingham
ghosttrainbrewing.com

This new brewery boasts Alabama's first and only High Efficiency Brewing System which allows for us to produce more of your favorite liquids with much less impact on the environment. Ghost Train is now proudly distributed across the entire state of Alabama, Mississippi, & panhandle of Florida with big plans for future expansion.

GOOD PEOPLE BREWING CO.

114 14th Street S, Birmingham
goodpeoplebrewing.com

Located in Birmingham's burgeoning Parkside District, Good People has some of the highest rated beers in the Southeast. And with interesting names. Jim advises trying Snake Handler or The Bearded Lady.

HI-WIRE BREWING

hirewirebrewing.com

Located in Birmingham's busy Lakeview District just across the street from Automatic Seafood, this natural light-filled space is part of the new Lakeview Green mixed-use development. Interactive Games, plenty of outdoor seating within a large green space, ample parking and non-alcoholic options available at this unique brewery.

MONDAY NIGHT BREWING

mondaynightbrewing.com

Monday Night Social Club serves more than 25 brews on tap, including house-made beers, small batch IPAs, barrel-aged and sour beers, and guest taps from other local breweries. Had your fill of beer? They also have a full bar with wine and cocktails. Jim goes there for the Fast & Furious references.

STEELE HALL BREWING CO.

227 Main St, Trussville
steelehallbrewingco.com

With a concentration on Hazy IPAs, Steele Hall Brewing has a wide range, with fruited sours, stouts and of course lagers. Located in the entertainment district area in Trussville.

THE GROCERY BREWPUB

2823 Central Ave, Homewood
thegrocerybrewpub.com

Good food and great brews are the attraction at this brewpub in the Birmingham suburb of Homewood. Taco Tuesdays pack the house, and a beautiful lineup of drafts on tap are enjoyed along with frequent live music.

TRIM TAB BREWING CO.

trimtabbrewing.com

Voted among the country's best breweries by Thrillist and Forbes, this small craft operation serves up big taste. Their Tasting Gallery and outdoor spaces also serve as music venues and art galleries for local artists. Jim's tab here is seldom trim.

TRUE STORY BREWING CO.

5510 Crestwood Blvd, Birmingham
truestorybrewing.com

Live music accompanies the pleasures of beer on draft at this friendly neighborhood brewery. Interesting beers are brewed in-house with additional rotating guest taps. They also have a good menu of pub foods. What Jim likes is their beer served up alongside pinball, billiards, foosball, and board games.

UPROOT BREWING CO.

2616 3rd Ave S, Birmingham
uprootbrews.com

With plenty of indoor seating, Uproot Brewing will build out the outdoor seating as the weather warms. Plenty of greenery and wooden accents add to the earthy tones of one of Birmingham's newest breweries. A specialty is Uproot's Lager, something light, clean and crisp during Alabama's 90-degree summers. ♦
